Response to Arguments

1. In response to applicant's argument that Bell, King et al. and George, Jr. are nonanalogous art, it has been held that a prior art reference must either be in the field of applicant's endeavor or, if not, then be reasonably pertinent to the particular problem with which the applicant was concerned, in order to be relied upon as a basis for rejection of the claimed invention. See In re Oetiker, 977 F.2d 1443, 24 USPQ2d 1443 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the references talk about a legal entity that avoids a conflict of interest which is the main focus of the applicant's invention. A blind trust serves the same purpose to avoid a conflict of interest and a blind trust is a financial instrument. Preferred stock does not eliminate a conflict of interest. Preferred stock is a security that shows ownership in a corporation and gives the holder a claim, prior to the claim of commonstockholders, on earnings and also generally on assets in the event of liquidation. Most preferred stock pays a fixed dividend that is paid prior to the common stock dividend, stated in a dollar amount or as a percentage of par value. This stock does not usually carry voting rights. Preferred stock has characteristics of both common stock and debt, but rather a legally established form of ownership, and as such, does not avoid a conflict of interest. What the inventor describes is a third party payment scheme which does not avoid a conflict of interest because the holder benefits when certain events occur. Only a blind trust arrangement would avoid a conflict of interest.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bell(6161096A), King et al.(5704045A) and George, Jr.(5775734A).

Bell discloses a financial instrument that is activated or executed based on a specific event that occurs like a split dollar event or other financial event. The financial instrument is controlled by a third party within a Rabbi Trust structure(Abstract, col. 1, line 55-col. 3, line 10).

Bell fail to teach legally segregated relationship between the issuing entity and the net recipients of the proceeds upon an event affecting firm valuation. However, King et al. does teach third party management of financial instrument with professionals' interests taken into account (Abstract, Col. 3, line 20-col. 4, line 67). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art the time the Applicant's invention was made to modify the teachings of Bell to include the step of third party financial instrument management for professionals. The motivation to combine these references is to eliminate conflicts of interest.

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
